EB Docket No. 06-36

STATEMENT OF COMPLIANCE PROCEDURES

Signal Telecommunications, Inc. ("Signal") is provider of prepaid long distance and international calling cards.

To the fullest extent applicable, Signal ensures that its business methods and operating procedures are in compliance with FCC Rules pertaining to CPNI.

As a provider of prepaid calling card services primarily offered to the transient public through retail outlets and kiosks, Signal is generally not privy to customer information such as name, address and other personal information. Signal's access to CPNI is limited to Call Detail Records and other data collected by its switches. However, without access to its customer's personal information, CDR and other data records are rendered useless.

Signal does conduct a limited number of transactions over the Internet through which personal information is obtained from prospective customers. Such personal information is used exclusively to process electronic payments.

Nonetheless, Signal does not use CPNI for marketing purposes and ensures that the limited CPNI it does have access to is not sold or given to any third parties for any purpose, unless pursuant to lawful subpoena.
